Extended homework comes home today. Each teacher will set a project lasting over two weekends that we hope will encourage more in depth learning alongside your child.

Thank you

To Tara Sibert in Year 1 for this week's border design.

To Bandini and her team, and the hundreds of you who attended. Our lovely Family BINGO Profit made £464 profit! Next event, the International Summer Festival on July 1st. We hope to make this event a celebration of the food and customs of the many countries represented at EP.

Well done everyone

The team from Challenge Partners left yesterday, having affirmed, for the 5th time since our 2011 OfSTED that we remain an outstanding school. Well done to all the children and staff! Having this annual 'health check' that we choose to have, is a critical part of our school improvement and retaining our high expectations and standards.

And finally!

Work on our long-awaited science lab starts after half term! Although we are all so excited, it will mean 5-6 months of major disruption to our site and in particular our playground. Everything will be fenced off and safe, but the infant play-space will be severely restricted.

Amazingly we have reached half term. We are half way through another school year. School is closed to children next week and re-starts on Monday 20th February.

Remember our school policy is no homework in half terms and holidays: better to do lots, read lots and have a good rest. Have a lovely week!

With best wishes
Kate Frood and staff
